Asset allocation, like many investment strategies, offers no guarantee of positive returns, and are subject to market risk, including loss of principal. Each investor should carefully consider the investment objectives, risks and expenses of any Exchange-Traded Fund (“ETF”) prior to investing. ETF’s may result in the layering of fees as ETF’s impose their own advisory and other fees. Fixed income investing is subject to credit risk and interest rate risk. Investments in high-yield bonds (“junk bonds”) may be subject to greater volatility and risks as the income derived from these securities is not guaranteed and may be unpredictable and the value of these securities tends to decline when the interest rate increases. Commodities may not be suitable for all investors. It may be subject to greater volatility as they may be affected by overall market movements or factors affecting a particular industry.
